

2018 Certificate in Sexological Bodywork Professional Training, Byron Bay, Australia

The Certificate in Sexological Bodywork in Australia is a professional training for somatic sex educators that also offers a profound learning experience for people interested in their own erotic development.

The faculty leading this training, Deej Juventin and Uma Ayelet Furman, bring many years of experience working directly with clients, leading groups, and teaching and supervising practitioners. This training offers specific instruction in Deej and Uma's renowned methodology for teaching erotic embodiment skills to groups, and how to effectively create client-centered sessions. Additionally, Ellen Heed, one of the world's leading educators of holistic anatomy and women's pelvic health, will be supporting the training through recorded lectures and two live video conferences, along with Joseph Kramer, the founder of Sexological Bodywork, who provides the online group study material for module one, and will present by video conference.

Course Dates for the 2018 Australian training: September 14, 2018 to March 31, 2019.
